

Weekly Newsletter

22/01/2020

Welcome to our weekly newsletter.

I hope everyone is well - thank you so much to all of you for keeping in touch if you are not in school and letting us know what you are doing. We have delivered home learning packs to lots of children last week and will be doing some more this week.

I will be sending out a survey next week to collect your feedback and views.

This Week in Nursery

Snug have been exploring puddles, transporting the water and watching what happens when you push something down into a puddle and it pops up again.

Nest class were reading 'Whatever next' - the bear in the story drinks some lemonade - the children had a go at squeezing lemons and adding them to water to see what it tasted like!

Den class have been making bread and reading 'Hooray for Bread'

It's been so good to see your home learning pictures on tapestry. Please continue posting them so we can see what the children are doing - it's been great to see all the cooking going on!

This week in Nursery

Den Class

Den Class will be making more bread and collecting rainwater as children have been having fun in the rain.

Nest Class

Nest class will be doing bird watching - children were very interested in spotting birds last week and thinking about their journeys to and from school and making maps.

Snug Class

Snug Class will be reading 'Drum' - you can watch part of it here

<https://youtu.be/lq0e9VaBubg>

They will also be making mango and banana smoothie, doing listening walk in the garden and making a drum using junk modelling.

Home Learning

Please check into Tapestry - we are putting lots of stories and activities on there.

Your teachers / room leaders will be sending you a week's home learning program which you can follow each day if you like or choose the activities you would like to do. We will focus on the book the children will be doing in their class that week.

We also have home learning activities on our website under learning - please have a look - there are lots of videos on there read by Kay Rowe staff who your children will recognise

We would love to see photos of any activities your children have been doing - please load up to tapestry to share with us.

Please take care and stay at home as much as you can - Get in touch if you need any help.

Follow us on twitter - we often post news, events, activities and celebrate children's achievements there
